NOTICE

Warning concerning copyright restrictions

The copyright law of the United States (Title 17, United States Code) governs the making of photocopies or other reproductions of copyrighted material. Under certain conditions specified in the law, libraries and archives are authorized to furnish a photocopy or other reproduction. One of these specified conditions is that the photocopy or reproduction is not to be "used for any purpose other than private study, scholarship, or research." If a user makes a request for, or later uses, a photocopy or reproduction for purposes in excess of "fair use," that user may be liable for copyright infringement. Harvard University reserves the right to refuse to accept a copying order if, in its judgement, fulfillment of the order would involve violation of copyright law.

I agree that these copies will be used solely for private study, scholarship, or research. I will not quote from, publish, reproduce, or display any of this material, in whole or in part, without written permission from the curator of manuscripts and archives at the Harvard Divinity School. In the event that I am given permission to publish any of this material, I understand that it is my responsibility to identify the copyright holder and gain permission to publish from that party as well as from the curator of manuscripts and archives. These copies will not be given or sold to other institutions or individuals.
